IITB Project Recruitment:

Project title: VMOCSH: Voice based MOBILE Crowd Sourced Helpline

About the project: We are looking to hire people to work on 2 projects.

BodhiTree: Bodhitree is an e-learning platform developed entirely at IIT Bombay. It supports interactive lecture videos with in-video questions, objective and descriptive quizzes, and includes an interface for developing and auto-grading of programming assignments. Bodhitree allows instructors to selectively assemble a course of their own using resources from existing courses, thereby supporting a blended (local+remote) model of online courses.

WWH (World Wide help): Modeled after World Wide Web, the goal of WWH is providing easy and cost effective information access via phone calls to poor and low literates. It is a low cost alternative to call centers and employs an intelligent task management framework. Many field trials are ongoing.
